City-Focused Online Travel Magazine Makes Its Debut

TheCityTraveler, an online magazine for people who love exploring the world's great urban places, has launched at <http://TheCityTraveler.com>.

Created by veteran travel writers Robert DiGiacomo, JoAnn Greco, and Cathleen McCarthy, the site offers a compelling mix of destination features, spotlight pieces on hotels, restaurants, museums and the outdoors, and breaking news about the latest developments in cities big and small. Also in the mix are items about travel packages and discounts and a special section on weekend getaways.

"With TheCityTraveler, we hope to inspire readers to see familiar cities in new ways and to get first-hand information about lesser-known destinations," Greco says.

TheCityTraveler is different from many sites in that its material is contributed by seasoned, professional writers whose travels have taken them to every continent. Their work has appeared in major newspapers, magazines and Web sites, including National Geographic Traveler, The Washington Post, USA Today and USA Weekend, Town & Country, CNN,.com and Art & Antiques.

"On TheCityTraveler, you'll find first-person accounts and a range of fascinating travel tales from writers who live to travel and have insights on the best ways to experience cities," McCarthy says.

The site is a true passion for its founders, who are eager to share their love of urban destinations and their knowledge of what makes each place unique.

"We've yet to meet a city where we didn't find something to like, whether it was a restaurant with authentic local cuisine, an offbeat museum, or a lively café filled with locals, and we look forward to passing along those kinds of insider tips," DiGiacomo says.

About TheCityTraveler's founding editors:

Robert DiGiacomo is a regular contributor to Fodor's publications whose other writings on travel, food and wine and lifestyle topics have appeared in USA Today and USA Weekend, The Washington Post, CNN.com, The Boston Globe, Wine Spirits Quarterly, and Yahoo.com.

JoAnn Greco writes often about the intersection of travel, architecture and urban life for publications such as National Geographic Traveler, The Washington Post, Toronto Globe and Mail, AIA Context, Fodor's, Art & Antiques, Metropolis, and forbestraveler.com.

Cathleen McCarthy writes about design and collecting, cultural and active travel for Art & Antiques, Town & Country, AmericanStyle, US Airways, Departures, MSN City Guides, and The Washington Post.
